THE WEEKLY CLIPPER.

Our subscription list shows that the Weekly Clipper is rapidly gaining ground in the public favor, that as a compendium of news it is we'comed by numerous families in this and surrounding States. who have paid it the compliment of their support by selecting it from amongst num bers of other excellent journals hitherto claiming their patronage. Carefully made ! up of news and miscellaneous matter of the most attractive kind for family reading, and with every thing cautiously scanned and excluded, which can be considered in any sense objectionable for the social circle, we find the endeavor to make it thus unexceptionable appreciated,whilst it will be our endeavor to continue to make it all that can be required. sides the latest news from the various centres of hostilities, it contains articles on ! almost every subject that can be named, whether scientific, literary, agricultural or political. With correspondents, too, at Washington and Annapolis, and the latest telegraph news, the patrons of the Weekly Clipper may still depend upon it morning with or without wrappers, and at the usual price. WINTER-LIFE IN THE CITY AND COUNTRY COMPARED. The time is upon us, that inclement season of the year, to stir to industry the most active charity, as the cold blasts of winter sweep along the almost deserted streets and the frozen alleys of the great city. High priced as fuel is, and indispensable as it is to existence-not to say comfort-how thousands are provided for, is one of the mysteries, and causes one in passing along the thoroughfares to speculate in numberless forms on the comparative means afforded by city and country, to obtain the means of comfort. When we reflect that this one city contains a population equal almost to that of the whole State, besides, and that scattered over the extensive area of the latter are gregarious,-is a social being,-it goes far to convince one that there must be unwonted attractions to such aggregations of life, and that the few, comparatively, who make for themselves an independent life upon farms, are exceptions to the general rule, more remarkable than is !

at first glance conceived. And now, let us, for a few moments. compare the two modes of life, viewed in the light of the immediate present. Passing along any street where the population [ pendent on their daily labor for support men, who as earnest workers are good citizens; and without specifying the occupation, we know almost intuitively. that in the scores of dwellings which thus challenge attention, whilst there are b few superfluities, almost certainly, in deed, no luxuries, there must be much
