LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper Washington, March 4th, 1565. The installation of a President and Vice President for another term of four years, with all its imposing ceremonies and interesting incidents, is over, and I venture to say, that the memory of to-day will not soon fade from the mind of any of the thousands who participated in or witnessed the proceedings.

The weather for the previous sixty hours had been so dismally wet and unfavorable, and the thoroughfares in formidably muddy a condition, that the idea of anything like a procession had been cable, and all had made up their minds, some unaccountable reason. In point of from an early hour, that the pageant execution, blending with each other, and Here the best arrangements in his power had been made by the popular Sergeantsonably satisfactory"—though not quite ble youth could have desired! N'importe, The spectacle in the Senate Chamber at the time President Lincoln entered, was where in the world. The galleries were appropriated exclusively to ladies; and there was a blaze of beauty and grace all around. America bears off the palm for delicate feminine loveliness, by the unanimous verdict of foreigners as well as travelled Americans. Lace, old lace, is a product of art, not of manufacture; human life, human volition, is expressed in every inch of the delicate mesh which makes the costly ground to set forth the pattern. There is individuality impressed upon each kind of lace, just as there is upon each great school of painting: for the artists in each put their seal upon their work. It took a lifetime to produce even a small quantity of fine lace. "Les belles et eternelles Valenciennes." as they were called, required so much labor, that some workers could only produce twenty four inches in the year.
