

DAILY CLIPPER.

W. H. WALKER, Publisher.

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1865.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE DAILY CLIPPER.

Two-and-a-half dollars per week, part editors, $1.25.
Mailed to Subscribers out of the city at $2.00 FOR ONE YEAR, 1.00 FOR SIX MONTHS, 1.00 FOR THREE MONTHS,
1.00 FOR TWO MONTHS,
1.00 FOR ONE MONTH,
INvariably in Advance.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

The following exhibit of our regular rate
will be found of service:

1 Square 1 Time.....	$.50
" " 2 Times.....	.75
" " 3 Times.....	1.25
" " 4 Times.....	1.50
" " 5 Times.....	1.75
" " 6 Times.....	2.00
" " 7 Times.....	2.25
" " 8 Times.....	2.50
" " 9 Times.....	2.75
" " 10 Times.....	3.00
" " 11 Times.....	3.25
" " 12 Times.....	3.50
" " 13 Times.....	3.75
" " 14 Times.....	4.00
" " 15 Times.....	4.25
" " 16 Times.....	4.50
" " 17 Times.....	4.75
" " 18 Times.....	5.00

ONE SQUARE CONTAINS SIX LINES
OF SPACE.

15 Those persons who wish to have the Clipper served to them on the Federal Hill route—a new carrier having taken it—will please leave their names at the Drug Store of Mr. Robbins, corner of Light and Hughes streets.

ADVERTISING AGENT.

Our advertising agent for the city is Captain William Gibson, who will, as his clients opportunity, call upon the old parons of the Clipper, and to whom any lavers in the advertising line can be referred. Our patrons will find him enable.

CF PRENTISS in Washington, D. C., wishes to subscribe for the Clipper and leave their names with our Agent, J.
GUTHRIE, 60 Seventh street, Navy Yard, or with GUNNISON, Printers, 271
Pennsylvania avenue.

THE WEEKLY CLIPPER.

This valuable family journal will be included promptly at the usual hour this morning. It will be found exceedingly interesting, containing, as it does, a full and graphic account of the re-inauguration of President Lincoln; the closing scenes in Congress; the proceedings of the Methodist Episcopal Conference, with the list of appointments; correctly corrected market reports; the recent splendid victory of Sheridan over Early; together with invaluable reading matter calculated to instruct and amuse the general reader. It can be had at the counter with or without wrappers, at the usual price.

FROM THE FRONT.

(Special Correspondence of the Clipper, CITY BOULVARD, March 8, 1865.)

The weather still continues remarkably pleasant, and the roads as a consequence are drying up rapidly, inspiring all here with hope of more rapid movements each day. We may perceive the signs of the great conflict. To go along the lines, however, one sees but a little more animation as the result of the skirmish which pervades almost the whole of City Point. With the most meagre supply of sentinels and outlying officials possible, wherewith to fence him self in from the public observation or inspection, still, few or no vessels venture to play the part of curiously hiders in approaching the place, whilst all who have any business with him all no means of evasion in their way. His staff officers are certainly models for many other commanders of far inferior rank, and in its present state, a real rebuke to the pretensions of some eminent failures the country has occasion to remember with bitterness.

THURSDAY.—We are again indebted to Mr. Henry Taylor, our general news dealer, for New York papers in advance of the mail.

THE TWO INAUGURALS.

There is an unconscious tone running through the late Inaugural of President Lincoln which the historian will not fail to remark upon, in contrast with that delivered by him four years ago; and each will be found, we think, to express the actual situation, and the prevalent feeling of the nation, at the time of the first inaugural. The first Inaugural, like the tone of the通俗 of sentinel at the time, as the reader will remember, was apologetic, explanatory. It abounded in appeals to the sense of justice of the people, and denied any violation of the Constitution. It denied any violation of the Constitution, and it modestly suggested, by interrogation, as to, if we say, "by your leave," how different the second Inaugural of President Lincoln will be. Without being in the slightest degree apologetic, arrogant, or impudent, its author naturally took the tone of a master of the situation. Though entirely characteristic of the mind of the author, it is, however, remarkable that he uses the necessity without undertaking to apologize for or defend what has been done, and is doing for the suppression of the rebellion, and the future of the country.
All we are spoken of as master, which were from the first the inevitable results of the divine law of Providence.

And how true is this tone of the Inaugural to the tone of public sentiment. The army has gained here now some eight months, and therefore even the most patient are getting anxious for a change of locality—All, too, are in hopes that soon Sherman may come up from the Carolinas to admonish Early to give place to the Union troops, without compelling our brave fellows here to storm works which can not involve a terrible loss of life.

And whilst the usual routine of military drill is observed, whilst habit or the necessity of the case, the most careful discipline is kept up, the omens whisper goes round that the time of active movements is at hand, although none seem to imagine that the rebels are likely to try our lines of fortifications again. Whilst all are ready to try conclusions with them after the old fashion, should they come on, all confess a profound respect for the fighting qualities of their old antago-nists, and anticipate a severe struggle when the conflict is recommenced.

To look over the country about here, one sees evidences a plenty of things having been once a beautiful and desirable farming country. So nearly level that the whole distance around to the left requires only a few slight grades to make the military railroad available for army transportation, two or three trifling pieces of trestle work completes the work, and although the cars pitch and roll like ships in a storm, it is quite good enough for the temporary purpose it is designed to serve.

In glancing at the position of things here, one is struck with the remarkable adaptation of this place as a base for army movements. With the whole outside world to draw upon through the broad water transportation imaginable, there is nothing that can be wanting but what can be landed with the most perfect facility, and once on the shore, the whole can be dropped at stations along a line of nearly twenty miles in length, all this requiring but a slight supply of wagons to convey them to every brigade or regiment.

And then for another important feature in army operations, the Hospital Department—there could be nothing more complete or convenient, seemingly. The hospitals are located mainly along the line of the Appomattox, from City Point to the Point of Rocks; and as this comprises a line of only about six miles in length, nothing can be more convenient for the reception and discharge of the multitudinous patients. A wholesale sealing away of these of late, is taken as a further indication of active operations here.

And speaking of the hospital system here, it appears to be the one great impressive feature of the place. Whilst those nearest City Point are largely composed of canvas tents, those at Point of Rocks are immense buildings, most of them built of logs, planks and beams, ways in the ground, and at Point Lookout, the structures radiate from a common centre. Water is sent by a force-pump from the river to a tank in the centre of the grounds, so that although the place appears but temporally occupied, because dependent of course upon operations to date, Richmond and Petersburg, nothing is wanting to render the whole concern complete in the conveniences furnished, notwithstanding the fragile character of the structures.

And for the admirable manner in which they appear to serve their intended purpose, of alleviating suffering and forwarding the recovery of the wounded and sick, few can estimate—unless on the spot—the noble services rendered by these two great benevolent agencies mentioned in my last letter, the Christian and Sanitary Commissions. The latter organization grows up from the humblest possible beginning, as a religious association, to be an agent for the dispensation of a great deal of material aid. With some forty road trains in its stable, and a lot of wagons to carry around their supplies, a body of devoted missionaries some seventy-five in number of all grades, men who care deeply for both soul and body, are constantly on the alert wherever there is spiritual concern to be administered at the bedside of the wounded and sick, or a sermon to appeal to the well. The large and comfortable chapels dotted here and there in the line of their operations, with reading rooms, and distribution of tracts, newspapers and books, to the scholars on every side, we have seen the commanding officers of three or four hundred even drawn up in line to go picket take the most interest in giving the member of the Christian Commission a chance to utter a brief but earnest exhortation, to pray with them, the whole winding up with the gift of a religious newspaper or hymn-book to each soldier, the latter receiving the donation with the most evident thankfulness. One of their most earnest friends is General Grant, who, in his great position, has held the attention of our great political leaders in many a difficult situation. Still, few or no vessels venture to play the part of curiously hiders in approaching

the place, whilst all who have any
business with him all no means of
evasion in their way. His staff officers
are certainly models for many other
commanders of far inferior rank, and in its
present state, a real rebuke to the
pretensions of some eminent failures the
country has occasion to remember with
bitterness.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

The following exhibit of our regular rate
will be found of service:

1 Square 1 Time.....	$.50
" " 2 Times.....	.75
" " 3 Times.....	1.25
" " 4 Times.....	1.50
" " 5 Times.....	1.75
" " 6 Times.....	2.00
" " 7 Times.....	2.25
" " 8 Times.....	2.50
" " 9 Times.....	2.75
" " 10 Times.....	3.00
" " 11 Times.....	3.25
" " 12 Times.....	3.50
" " 13 Times.....	3.75
" " 14 Times.....	4.00
" " 15 Times.....	4.25
" " 16 Times.....	4.50
" " 17 Times.....	4.75
" " 18 Times.....	5.00

ONE SQUARE CONTAINS SIX LINES
OF SPACE.

15 Those persons who wish to have the
Clipper served to them on the Federal
Hill route—a new carrier having taken
it—will please leave their names at the
Drug Store of Mr. Robbins, corner of Light and Hughes streets.

ADVERTISING AGENT.

Our advertising agent for the city is
Captain William Gibson, who will, as his
clients opportunity, call upon the old parons of the Clipper, and to whom any
lavers in the advertising line can be referred. Our patrons will find him enable.

CF PRENTISS in Washington, D. C., wishes to subscribe for the Clipper and
leave their names with our Agent, J.
GUTHRIE, 60 Seventh street, Navy Yard,
or with GUNNISON, Printers, 271
Pennsylvania avenue.

THE WEEKLY CLIPPER.

This valuable family journal will be included promptly at the usual hour this morning. It will be found exceedingly interesting, containing, as it does, a full and
graphic account of the re-inauguration of
President Lincoln; the closing scenes in
Congress; the proceedings of the Methodist Episcopal Conference, with the list of
appointments; correctly corrected market
reports; the recent splendid victory of
Sheridan over Early; together with in-
valuable reading matter calculated to in-
struct and amuse the general reader. It
can be had at the counter with or without
wrappers, at the usual price.

FROM THE FRONT.

(Special Correspondence of the Clipper,
CITY BOULVARD, March 8, 1865.)

The weather still continues remarkably
pleasant, and the roads as a consequence
are drying up rapidly, inspiring all here
with hope of more rapid movements each
day. We may perceive the signs of the great
conflict. To go along the lines, however,
one sees but a little more animation as the
result of the skirmish which pervades almost
the whole of City Point. With the most
meagre supply of sentinels and outlying
officials possible, wherewith to fence him
self in from the public observation or inspection, still, few or no vessels venture to play
the part of curiously hiders in approaching
the place, whilst all who have any
business with him all no means of
evasion in their way. His staff officers
are certainly models for many other
commanders of far inferior rank, and in its
present state, a real rebuke to the
pretensions of some eminent failures the
country has occasion to remember with
bitterness.

THURSDAY.—We are again indebted to
Mr. Henry Taylor, our general news dealer,
for New York papers in advance of the
mail.

THE TWO INAUGURALS.

There is an unconscious tone running
through the late Inaugural of President Lincoln which the historian will not fail
to remark upon, in contrast with that delivered by him four years ago; and each
will be found, we think, to express the
actual situation, and the prevalent feeling
of the nation, at the time of the first
inaugural. The first Inaugural, like the tone
of the通俗 of sentinel at the time,
as the reader will remember, was
apologetic, explanatory. It abounded in appeals to the sense of justice of the people, and denied
any violation of the Constitution. It denied
any violation of the Constitution, and it modestly suggested, by interrogation, as to, if we
say, "by your leave," how different the
second Inaugural of President Lincoln
will be. Without being in the slightest degree apologetic, arrogant, or impudent, its
author naturally took the tone of a master
of the situation. Though entirely characteristic of the mind of the author,
it is, however, remarkable that he
uses the necessity without undertaking
to apologize for or defend what has been
done, and is doing for the suppression of
the rebellion, and the future of the country.
All we are spoken of as master, which
were from the first the inevitable results
of the divine law of Providence.

And how true is this tone of the Inaugural
to the tone of public sentiment. The army
has gained here now some eight months, and
therefore even the most patient are getting anxious for a change of locality—
All, too, are in hopes that soon Sherman
may come up from the Carolinas to ad-
monish Early to give place to the Union
troops, without compelling our brave
fellows here to storm works which can
not involve a terrible loss of life.

And whilst the usual routine of military
drill is observed, whilst habit or the
necessity of the case, the most careful
discipline is kept up, the omens whisper

goes round that the time of active movements is at hand, although none seem to
imagine that the rebels are likely to try
our lines of fortifications again. Whilst
all are ready to try conclusions with them
after the old fashion, should they come
on, all confess a profound respect for
the fighting qualities of their old antago-
nists, and anticipate a severe struggle
when the conflict is recommenced.

To look over the country about here,
one sees evidences a plenty of things
having been once a beautiful and desirable farming country. So nearly level that the
whole distance around to the left requires
only a few slight grades to make the
military railroad available for army transportation, two or three trifling pieces of
trestle work completes the work, and al-
though the cars pitch and roll like ships
in a storm, it is quite good enough
for the temporary purpose it is designed
to serve.

And then for another important feature
in army operations, the Hospital Department—there could be nothing more complete or convenient, seemingly. The
hospitals are located mainly along the line of the Appomattox, from City Point
to the Point of Rocks; and as this comprises a line of only about six miles in
length, nothing can be more convenient
for the reception and discharge of the
multitudinous patients. A wholesale
sealing away of these of late, is taken as
a further indication of active operations
here.

And speaking of the hospital system
here, it appears to be the one great impressive feature of the place. Whilst
those nearest City Point are largely composed of canvas tents, those at Point Lookout, the structures radiate from a common
centre. Water is sent by a force-pump
from the river to a tank in the centre of
the grounds, so that although the place
appears but temporally occupied, because
dependent of course upon operations to
date, Richmond and Petersburg, nothing
is wanting to render the whole concern
complete in the conveniences furnished,
notwithstanding the fragile character
of the structures.

And for the admirable manner in
which they appear to serve their intended purpose, of alleviating suffering and forward-
ing the recovery of the wounded and sick,

few can estimate—unless on the spot—the
 noble services rendered by these two great
benevolent agencies mentioned in my last
letter, the Christian and Sanitary Com-
missions. The latter organization grows
up from the humblest possible beginning,
as a religious association, to be an agent
for the dispensation of a great deal of
material aid. With some forty road
trains in its stable, and a lot of wagons
to carry around their supplies, a body of
devoted missionaries some seventy-five in
number of all grades, men who care deeply
for both soul and body, are constantly
on the alert wherever there is spiritual
concern to be administered at the bed-
side of the wounded and sick, or a sermon to appeal to the well. The large
and comfortable chapels dotted here and
there in the line of their operations, with
reading rooms, and distribution of tracts,
newspapers and books, to the scholars on
every side, we have seen the commanding
officers of three or four hundred even
drawn up in line to go picket take the
most interest in giving the member of
the Christian Commission a chance to utter a brief but earnest exhortation, to pray
with them, the whole winding up with
the gift of a religious newspaper or hymn-
book to each soldier, the latter receiving the