CHARACTERISTICS OF THE NEW . EXECUTIVE. In the deposition of Mr. Lincoln, by ) death, from the Presidency, the worst, possible fortune is that of Jeff Davis and all who for four years have been the champions of the rebellion; because if the whole country was searched, from Maine to California, no more uncompromising; for to secession could be found than is to be found in the person of an East Tennessee Unionist like President Johnson. Make to suffer fearfully from the very outset of the struggle, pursued with a savage virulence natural to the leading traitors, when their victim for the time was one of their most able and uncompromising antagonists, they showed him and his family no mercy whatever, when they had them in their power: but plundering them of terly crush them, to make an example of fearless stand in favor of the Union.

And what made the new Executive a more shining mark for the deadly shafts of these fees to free governvery inception of these troubles. No speech | out, was more able and uncompromising predecessor. than his famous effort in the outset in the United States Sexate, for in that speech he perfectly exhausted the whole subject: he gave a luminous exposition of the whole spirit and tendencies of secession, such as might be studied with profit today, after all that has since been written or spoken on the subject. Full, elequent, literally unanswerable, it was the first and Indies Hair Dressers. heavy bomb-shell in the Secession camp; and with a defiance to them in all time to come, recognize one of their | stant, by the Rev. Recognized in a railroad car at Lynchburg, he was insulted, assailed, mobbed, and narrowly escaped with his life, such was the fierce rancer of his assailants; treatment which was by no means calculated to make one of his temperament and determination more placable, and which his sentiments thing could aggravate the case, the savage treatment extended to his family was calculated to do it. As we remember the story, his residence in East Tennessee was seized for a rebel hospital, Lis sick family turned into the street, and one o his sons—since a Colonel, and one of the best soldiers of the times-was forced conceal himself, and finally to make his way for hundreds of miles on foot across Kentucky and through the rebel lines.

Well, the Unionism which survived tests such as these, who shall now wen. make ture to impeach?
