REBEL AUDACITY NO LONGER TO BE TOLERATED.

Whilst the nation is occupied in paying the last sad honors to the remains of its illustrious Chief Magistrate, to the martyr pursued to his grave by the minions of secession, the occasion is rendered more marked and terrible by some of the attendant circumstances, events calculated to aggravate the horror and grief of the occasion, and to remind us more strongly than ever of the implacable spirit which has caused our troubles, and which, even in a crisis like this, abates none of its fierce and revolting attributes. Even whilst the lamented dead yet remains unburied, the spirit which originally prompted a vengeful war and the attempted overthrow of the government, walks abroad unabashed, and thrusting its most revolting features upon the attention of loyal men, dares to claim for itself consideration, and reckons still further upon that forbearance which has, at last, been the means of plunging the nation into the deepest woe.

The paroling of Lee's army, and the objectionable clemency extended to men who had forefeited every claim to the tender of leniency from the Union commander, is rending abroad over the land a surge of mischief, such as the Government under later developments may well feel called upon to check. The beaten rebels swarming into Richmond, to City Point, to Fortress Monroe and even hither, walk the earth with the port of heroes, jostling our soldiers in their camps at City Point—so the report is—and parading in loyal communities the decorations or insignia of rebel rank, of position won in assaults on the Government and in the destruction of loyal men, as if they indeed conferred honor, as if instead of being the sign of a beaten and disgraced and blood-stained revolt, they should command the world's regard and respect.

And by way, further of testing to the last limit the toleration of the Government, word comes to us from Richmond through the Whig of that city, that the late Editor of the Examiner there—Pollard—a man pre eminent for the evil he has wrought in the past in counselling the perpetration of the most horrible rebel excesses, that this man has dared to publish a "prospectus" for another paper in the same city; a print which could he get it into operation, would again doubtless prove to be a very torch of discord, another organ of the foul heresy which has already plunged Virginia into untold miseries. Arrested and imprisoned formerly for his treasonable utterances, and released—so the story goes—without even being required to take the "oath of allegiance"—that last easy alternative for hard pushed treason—he is somehow turned loose to concoct further evil, to defy the Government and to pour contempt and scorn upon loyal men. We are sure the Government on mature consideration of the case will reconsider the action, or rather the want of action had in the premises.

But after all, we believe the remedy is discovered for the evil which was fast developing itself, before the last and most terrible rebel outrage caused the nation to pause and consider the tendencies of late events in Virginia. The recent speech of the new Executive gives us reason to hope that rebel audacity is to have its final check, its overthrow, its utter extinguishment. Proud of its bloody exploits, whilst only dimly appreciating its hopeless and fallen condition, it dared to dream of an honored future for itself, beaten in the field, it ventured to plan for itself a new career politically, in which making poor old Virginia the base and centre of a "reconstruction" of its own, its plotters ex-rebel Secretary of War Campbell, John Letcher, and others might save themselves harmless; or indeed, out of the frightful complications and ruin of the hour, evolve something in the way of new political capital, with which to bid for new consideration in the formation of parties at the national metropolis.

We say this dream is forever ended with the advent to power of the new Executive. And if we are found entering upon the consideration of questions like these at a time like the present, let it be noted that no other alternative is left to loyal men, unless they would stand by quietly to see evils making headway, which unchecked, might be productive of new evils and terrors. We want no more "mobs" in the land, no more popular outbreaks, whatever may be the provocation. But we wish not to see, either, the rebel wound bleeding across its bounds by the consent of the Government to endanger the years of loyal countenance. We want to see no gilt stars on rebel uniforms parading our streets, and flouting badges of honor conferred for loyal services on hard fought fields. It is the duty of the Government to prevent such nuisances—it should not tempt the abating of them by irregular means.

Finally, in view of the new policy declared so recently at Washington, let us trustingly watch and wait. Not in passion, not in ungovernable wrath, should retribution for crime deal with the guilty. But in the calm consciousness of right; in the conviction that the nation must be saved in the future from evils and distresses such as on earth has had no parallel; let not a mistaken clemency nourish the hope or belief that such wickedness will ever in the future be tolerated. With a tenderly forgiveness foreshadowed for the traitors of the land, they themselves have pulled from the scabbard the sword of justice about to be sheathed, and foully murdering him who would have excused their crimes, let the new provocations they have given reach them indeed, that "mercy to the individual is cruelty to the State."

THE WOULD-BE ASSASSIN OF MR. SEWARD.—It is gratifying to know that one of the fiendish wretches who has played so prominent a part in the awful tragedies at Washington, is in safe custody, and goed for the penalty he has so richly earned. We only hope that ere long we may have the satisfaction of announcing that all implicated are in a similar situation, and that justice may have her demands satisfied upon villains unequalled for wickedness in all the annals of crimes. We look hourly for so desirable a result.

THE MAILS.—Our subscribers out of the city will have to bear with some irregularities in the transmission of their papers, consequent upon the excitement and some interruptions of the mails from late events. We shall endeavor now to see that matters in the line indicated proceed more regularly in future.

ANDREW JOHNSON AT HOME.

We are permitted to make the subjoined extracts, from a letter written by a gentleman of this city, who is not a politician, as long as July last. He was travelling in the West, and stopped at Nashville, to see the Governor of Tennessee. His impressions are frankly expressed, but were highly favorable to the man:

"I called on Governor Johnson. He said expressed a desire to see me, and I had a sufficiently long conversation with him. He is a very different person from what I had supposed. You know that he is a tailor, a Breckinridge democrat, and has been a member of Congress, State Governor, United States Senator, and is now Military Governor and candidate for the Vice Presidency. He was very illiterate, but his wife educated him and counselled him, and his speeches are eloquent.

"He is an ultra Unionist, if there can be such a thing, and has thrown party and slavery, and everything else conflicting with the Union overboard. He rules the State with a rod of iron. For instance, Mr. —— was solicited for a subscription to aid the refugees. 'Not a dollar,' said he, 'I wish the refugees were in hell.' The answer was reported to the Governor. 'Write to Mr. ——,' said he to his secretary, 'telling him that he is assessed five hundred dollars for the expenses of the State.' In half an hour the messenger returned, saying that the money was promised for the next morning.

"Of course he is hated like poison in the State, and his nomination excites great opposition.

"But I found him a very quiet, plain, unassuming man, of only medium height with a broad and well balanced forehead, intelligent but not striking face, and its conversation slow and restrained. He had no theories, and seemed particularly to avoid them, but addressed himself to the great work of regeneration. He explored the condition of the people, the oppressive aristocracy, and the want of any middle class—spoke very wisely of Governor Bramlette—and in all that he said seemed a sagacious, practical man. I felt much better after seeing him. For if he should be elected Mr. Lincoln will have a most uncompromising supporter, and if he dies a very wise successor."

A TESTIMONY.

The following note respecting the Vice President, says the New York Post, has been handed us by a late member of Congress, who, during four years at Washington, was much in the society of Mr. Johnson, both of them aiming at the same objects, and having frequent consultations together. From this long intimacy he was led to form an exalted opinion of both the public and private character in every respect, even in regard to that in which he has of late been most assailed:

"The present gloom and sadness of the people on account of the murder of President Lincoln seems to be increased by a misapprehension of the habits and character of his successor. I had the honor of being a member of the House of Representatives during the four years preceding Mr. Lincoln's term, and had the pleasure of frequent interviews with the Senator from Tennessee, now President of the United States. I know Mr. Johnson well, and I assure my countrymen that no man can be found of more correct habits or principles. He is the friend of the people and the enemy of their oppressors—God has now given him a mission. He will perform it."

ANOTHER TESTIMONY.

The following note is from a gentleman who knows of what he writes:

To the Editors of the Evening Post:

Will you allow me space enough in your columns to do an act of simple justice to the President of the United States in relation to the unfortunate circumstances which occurred on the day of the inauguration of President Lincoln? The facts are briefly these: Mr. Johnson had for some weeks previous been in bad health; he was exhausted by his journey to Washington, and in order to give him strength to go through with the fatigues of the day, resorted to the use of an alcoholic stimulant; not being accustomed to the use of ardent spirits it produced unpleasant consequences. I have known President Johnson intimately for the last twenty years; during his public life at Washington I have been at his room hundreds of times; I never saw a drop of liquor there on any occasion, never saw him drink a drop in my life, and never had reason to believe that he ever tasted it. T.

REBEL OFFICERS IN RICHMOND.

A letter from Richmond says: Lee's officers are beginning to arrive on their way to their homes, and it is somewhat unique to see them riding through the streets, dressed in full uniform, even to sashes, with sword and pistols prominently displayed, the latter always loaded. Some of these men have a very dim idea of their position as members of a conquered army, and display somewhat more of a vaunting spirit than befits their circumstances. One asked of a crowd of gaping, staring citizens on the street, 'Where's his —— Yankee Quartermaster? He's got to feed my horse.' Another, a Colonel, walked into Lieutenant Merrill's office, armed and accoutered for instant war, and demanded forage somewhat peremptorily. 'Who are you, sir?' asked Lieut. Merrill. 'An officer of Lee's army,' was the proud reply. 'Then, sir, take off those arms, and don't come into my office again with a loaded pistol.' The less than sensible Colonel took the hint at last.

These are instances narrated to show how these men are conducting themselves. They will all go home, and stay there; every man of them, but not even the terrible castigation they have received has whipped out of them the impudence that is an essential element of Southern character, especially among the military classes. How these men can display this spirit of bravado amid the ruin and desolation of Richmond, passes comprehension.

THE OATH PLAYED OUT.—A number of rebel officers who arrived here this morning by the mail boat from City Point, asked permission to take the oath of allegiance, which request was not granted for the present, and they were committed to the Old Capitol.

The following persons, who are well known in this city, were recognized as being among the number as they passed along the streets: N. R. Vansant, formerly a lieutenant in the United States Navy, and attached to the Observatory; —— Middleton, who at one time resided near 11th and M streets; Pall and Tom Haugerford, late of the Fenian Office, and well known in the Second Ward.—Washington Star, 17th.

LEE'S SURRENDER.—Additional interesting details of the surrender of Lee's army have been received. The work of paroling the rebels commenced on the 11th instant, and it was thought that three or four days altogether would be required to complete it. The number of men under General Lee's immediate command covered by the surrender was estimated at only about sixteen thousand, including officers, privates and teamsters. The surrendered artillery is supposed to comprise one hundred and seventy pieces. Seven hundred wagons also formed part of the Union prize. So nearly exhausted were the provisions of the rebels that while the surrender was in progress a large number of them had to be supplied with food by General Grant's commissaries. The majority seemed to more welcome than regret the surrender. Rebel officers transacted a brisk business in disposing of their horses to the officers of the national army, and showed their appreciation of the finances of Jeff. Davis' confederacy by a universal refusal to take rebel money in payment. The Second and Sixth Corps of the Army of the Potomac left Appomattox Court-house on the 11th inst., moving back towards Burkesville Junction, leaving the Fifth Corps behind to take charge of affairs till the surrender was terminated.

EAT FAT.—The celebrated Dr. Hoker gives the following results of his observations as to the use of fat: "Of persons who between the ages of fifteen and twenty avoid fat, the greater portion die with consumption before the age of thirty five. Nine-tenths of those who die with consumption are persons who never eat fat meat. Dr Dixon confirms this statement, and adds that this is the whole secret of the benefit of cod liver oil."

☞ Girard College, in Philadelphia, has five hundred and fifty-three pupils, each of whom costs one hundred and eighty dollars a year. In 1857 there were only two hundred and ninety five pupils and each then cost two hundred and fifty two dollars. The number of applications is increasing, on account of the orphanage produced by the war.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF EXPERIMENTS.—To few circumstances are we more indebted for our perfection in science than to the successful experiments of practical men. This was brought forcibly home to us the other day by reading over the names of individuals who received medals and premiums from the American Institute of New York in 1860. We were particularly struck with one article which was awarded a very high prize in the elite remedies of the successful candidates at the American Institute, we find that Mr. Speer had been for nine years preparing his celebrated Sambuci Wine, which has at last proved a success. Nine years of unwearied labor, close study, heavy outlay, innumerable experiments, are a long period to look back on, yet Mr. Speer can look with satisfaction on the past, so spent, when he reflects that his wish has been consummated. We are glad Mr. Speer has lived to see his Sambuci Wine supersede the abominable imported trash we in which Americans are year by year poisoned. Druggists sell this wine.—Scientific American.

CONNUBIAL FELICITY AND BLISS.—How WIVES should be TREATED.—Every woman is entitled to a share from the stores of this rude world than the delicate nature of woman. The husband remains hearty and robust in sense as when the full and delicate wife droops like a rose deprived of its fragrant. The storm that leaves the oak unscathed uproots the flower." If your wife is ailing, if sickness prostrates her, if maternal solicitude and care wear upon her, if female fears, and pains Heaven appointed guardians of her health. You should not fail to supply her with delicacies which will assist Nature in restoring her to full vigor. PLANTATION BITTERS are justly the leader in this line of effect in building up the system, restoring the life forces to their original vigor, creating new blood and adipose matter, is truly magical.

Go to your APOTHECARY and get a Bottle of TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT. You need it as a Gentle Cooling Purgative at this season of the year, to cleanse the System and Purify the Blood. PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR REMOVING WRECKS, &c., IN THE CAPE FEAR RIVER.
BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, NAVY DEPARTMENT, April 12, 1865.
The Bureau will until the 11th day of May, 1865, receive proposals for raising and removing the vessels—supposed to be about 36 in number—sunk and beached in and about the mouth of Cape Fear river, North Carolina.
The hulls of the vessels are mostly of iron, and the machinery in many of them is represented as being in good order.
Separate and special offers covering a single vessel only will be received for raising and delivering in New York the "North Heath," and the "Chicamacomico," with all the property that may be on board of them, on a salvage upon the net proceeds of the sale at public auction, of the Government to be at no expense whatever.
For the removal of wrecks the proposals may be for a year, or the whole of them, and must state the rate of salvage on the net proceeds of the sale at public auction, of the property raised and delivered at the United States Navy Yard, at Gosport, Virginia, without charge of any kind to the Government.
The materials recovered must be delivered at the navy-yard, with a separate invoice for each vessel.
Each offer must state the time within which the proposed to complete the work, which must be completed under the control of the commanding naval officer, who will designate the vessels on which operations are to be first commenced, and who will have the right of the work is not promptly commenced and diligently prosecuted, to annul the agreement, when all claim of the salvors to the property recovered will be forfeited to the Government.
The entire property will be placed in the hands of the Government, and sales will be made as may be deemed most advantageous to the Government and the parties concerned. Any other information desired will be given by the Bureau of Construction and Repair, to which the interests will be inserted in the agreement.
No proposition will be entertained from parties who do not furnish satisfactory evidence that they are prepared, with all the necessary appliances, for the execution of work of this kind.
Parties who may visit Wilmington for the purpose of making a personal examination preliminary to making an offer will be permitted to do so by the
