(From the Washington Star)
HOKKWARD BOUND.

IT WAS LITTLE BOY CASE.

Thank God! the last night's work!
The little boy's case is done!

Each day shall be a day of peace,
And each night a night of rest.

MISS SURRATT

When Miss Surratt was placed on the stand in defense of her mother, she stood in a death-like silence.

She was a tall, spare, slender woman, with a light complexion, and wore a black alpaca dress, with black silk and straw jacket.

She denied that her mother had any knowledge of the assassination plot before its execution, or that she was talked in her mother's house.

JEFF DAVIS IN PRISON

The Richmond correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, under date of the 29th inst., writes:

Jeff Davis in prison received the object of central interest. It is certain, notwithstanding the Herald's indignation over what it was published in Philadelphia.
