Our advertising agent for the city is Captain William Gibson

A NEW HOME TRUTH FOR THE PEOPLE OF BALTIMORE

We, a day or two ago, published the resolutions of the City Council which endeavor to correct the unfortunate impression which had gone forth to the South that Baltimore is a place to be shunned by those who do not want subjected to the annoyances of possible street from over the heads of the people of our citizens, and so far it is all very well

But no one can doubt the fact that already much mischief had been accomplished and that whilst this tardy correction has been preparing it has been done, beside, by those most interested in the prosperity of the city and State, to keep up with the demands of the hour

The fact is patent to all—that with a most commanding position with reference to the trade of the newly opened South especially, a noble opportunity has not only been neglected but that through somebody's blundering, we have been thrown behind our rivals in the struggle for needed trade and commerce

And without any design to reflect unduly upon those whose agency it was our duty those whose agency it was our duty to place the city in a better position, we propose to glance, in this issue, at a few leading matters which, whether duly considered by our readers or not, we deem of marked consequence

Let it be noted, in the first instance, then, that the hardships of the civil war just closed have borne with peculiar heaviness on this time to wait for the good and the third city in point of population in the Union

Whilst other cities of the loyal States have scarcely felt a check to their growth and prosperity some stimulated by one interest, others with something else, the fact is notorious, that Baltimore has been coming until, finally, when peace really is here, she is the chronic spathy in one regard, and the imprudent seal in another, that still it seems our province to watch and wait, to have that return to better times postponed in favor of others

Well, maybe the cause for this lack of action in the right direction is deeper than might at first be supposed, and it is by way of coming to the point that should be considered undoubtedly, the majority of the community will certainly excuse us, because there is so much that is of vital interest at issue, this is no time to talk poetry for fear what is said may prove unpalatable

We know that the City Council have done all that can be done, and that our leading citizens, other than these, have not done Maryland, like all other States, has a set of men who, will or ill, assume to take care of the public interests; who run for office and get office; and who make it their business to control public sentiment to lead off in all cases where the good of the State is supposed to be in question

We need not expect of such gentlemen—the public can remember them at a glance. Periodically, the whole State is agitated in discussing the claims of such to position; and, under the stimulus of a vigorous canvass, great promises are put forth on the one side, and great expectations are improvised on the other

But the canvass at an end—what do we see? The offices are obtained, the emoluments are received, and the gentlemen are most cases—a chronic spathy settles down upon it—upon it—until the next occasion when office is wanted, and then we have the whole thing over again

Well, it was once said of a period in Roman history, that "Caesar had a party, and Anthony and Lepidus a party; but that the Commonwealth had no party"

No, without making personal applications in this case which might seem frivolous, and because, besides, our discussion concerns measures more than individuals, let our readers make the applications for themselves—has a party, and—has no party. Divided into two or three factions, comprising the "ins" and the "outs," we witness delusions at Washington during the President's school! To hasten to the return of the Naval School to Annapolis? To get aid to improve our harbor? To remove its obstructions? To continue our city as a purchasing depot to give us the great U. S. Hoop? At this new and beautiful scheme, you may say, you are sitting at all times, a large quantity of the above

I have no hesitation in recommending it to the profession and the public, and so believe us, with thanks, yours truly,
