A QUESTION THAT IS ASSUMING FORMIDABLE DIMENSIONS, AND WHICH MUST BE MET.

The conflict with the sword has ceased; the roar of artillery and the clash of bayonets is over, and the grateful cry of "peace," ringing out on every side, tells at last how eagerly, in truth, are all to see a struggle ended, which has cost the nation so much of its best blood and treasure, and which has steeped it in tears. As the defenders of the Union hastened to participate in the struggle, so they hasten to quit it; show themselves eager to lay down their arms, now that the great objects for which they entered upon the contest are gained.

But whilst this is so; whilst we see the gallant tens of thousands cheerfully wending their way homewards with no fears haunting them that they will ever again be called to do battle by force of arms to maintain the Union, none can fail to observe that another, a political struggle is impending, which, involving no appeal to the sword, is yet destined to stir all hearts to their inmost depths, and which is but the sequel of that conflict just at an end. Troubled and almost torn asunder as the nation has been by what has already occurred, it is but natural for all who are weary of the strife to deprecate further agitation; but then it will not do to shut one's eyes to the real portents of the hour with the futile hope of thus postponing action; but accepting the situation, whatever that may be, all should prepare to acquit themselves as men who are as ready now as at any future period to enter on a contest for principle, and so to vindicate the right.

Let us remember that where issues so portentous and vital are in the case, ignoring or postponing needful treatment can work no permanent cure. Especially should we here in Maryland take note of the fact, that even after the conflict concerning slavery was fairly entered upon, and when the issue presented was its defeat and overthrow, or, on the other hand, the overthrow of the Government, there were those here who advocated a postponement of all debate concerning it; alleging that already we had enough to deal with; that we must put off the question of its abrogation to more peaceful times, to a "more convenient season."—It would not wait, however; it would force a decision. It had challenged it; and although the error was soon discovered by its friends, its champions, the challenge could not be withdrawn. We see the result to-day; and in view of what has happened throughout the length and breadth of the States which inaugurated the rebellion, who is not glad that the question was settled in Maryland as early in the conflict as it was—who regrets, now, that the war is over, that this question is not to perpetuate longer the angry strife, and to serve to that extent as a bar to our progress in the race for advancement with other States?

The matter to which we allude, and which as we have said, is now forcing itself on public attention, is,—need we say—the question of the future status of the colored race in this country;—the rights of the negro to what is termed "equality before the law,"—the right to vote, a right he once had in certain of the slave States, even. And we repeat it,—if any one will watch the signs of the times, hosts are marshalling for a struggle over this question, as formidable in their numbers, and in their relations to each other as those which deciding other issues in the field, are about laying down their arms. And now, assured of this, fully satisfied that until something is absolutely determined, demagogues will have a supply of materials on hand, for agitation, for strife, sufficient to keep the country in a ferment for years, the inquiry next forces itself on the attention of the thoughtful, the resolute, of all those who wish to see everything like bitter agitation cease,—what is the wisest course to pursue? Shall we attempt to evade the issue? shall we try the old method of expediency, of "compromise,"—or shall we—boldly—

"Out of this nettle—danger—pluck this flower—safety."

In the first place, then, let the commanding fact be duly noted, that both the North and the South, and what is more in this connection, the Government, has already conferred a status upon the negro which cannot be gotten rid of, and which has—despite anything that may hereafter be advanced—raised him to the dignity of a man! Putting arms into his hands, and making him an ally, a friend, a constituent of that great struggle for empire in the case of the rebellion,—of freedom, the highest style of man, in the other,—who can—now that the conflict is over,—and now that the negro has "acquitted" himself as a "man," remand him to his old condition? if not a slave, a cypher; and who does not feel assured that those who may attempt to do this, will in the end, come under the censure of the friends of liberty in every land, the enlightened and true of the whole human race?

Let it be asserted on all sides that the negro is not "competent" to the duties which may thus devolve upon him; that he must be "prepared for it," and so on. All this—let it be noted—is subordinate at last to the permanent peace of the country.

Taken at the most formidable estimate which can be made as to the numbers of the race in this country, and who has any real fears that twenty-five or thirty millions of whites cannot control them for good? In this view of the case, who so timid as to fear their influence for evil at the polls; who had not much better fear that other and greater evil, continuing him indefinitely as an element of discord and of strife, which, until disposed of, can know no end?

We are aware that in what we have advanced, we have considered but partially the assumed or real rights of the colored race; but then with the nation yet smarting from the evils sprung upon it in connection with slavery, we need for the present go no further than to the doctrine of "expediency," to determine the case in favor of a speedy and permanent decision in his favor. The negro must remain here—that is settled. We cannot dispose of him, as Spain disposed of the Moors. Africa is too distant, and colonizing the blacks by millions anywhere remote from this country but an ideal thing. Besides, we want his labor, and the field on this continent is illimitable. Let his status be fixed; and then, and not till then, we shall have "peace."

Finally—do not all see that in the approaching struggle of parties for supremacy, a struggle soon to take definite shape, that none, or neither, will fail to make use of every element that gives a promise of success. If the "chivalry" of South Carolina, for instance, could formally declare their willingness to march alongside of the negro, to receive him as a recruit into white regiments, will any, when the desperate alternative comes, refuse to accept him as a political ally, when the march is to the polls? If any there are at this late day, who flatter themselves with any sublime self denial in such wise, let them dismiss the idea at once and forever. Then we say again, this issue will be made, is impending, cannot be avoided. As inevitable as anything else that has happened within the past four years, let all concerned begin making up their minds to it, for the results in a military way that have followed the attack on Fort Sumter, were not more probable than those political ones which impend as the consequence of that action, which made the negro a soldier under the auspices of both the Government and the Rebellion. We have thus, in what we have said, but foreshadowed, not "precipitated" this issue; because in this, as in most other matters growing out of the great conflict, events outrun and control speculations.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON.

The President finding himself unable to attend to the important duties of his office, and give audience to hundreds of people who daily demand interviews, has directed his Secretaries General Massey and Col. Browning, to give all a hearing, and to refer cases to him, needing his attention An immense number of persons coming to him want matters that can only be attended to by the various Departments. Among the busy throng to-day, was a female F. F. M., who, decked off in the gorgeous array of four years ago, with an imperial air, said she must see the President.

"He cannot see any one, madam, unless he first knows their business," was the reply of the gallant general, who sifts out the meritorious from the chaff. "I must see him alone," she again urged. "You cannot violate his orders," answered the general. "I tell you I come all the way from Mississippi to see him, and I am not going to retail my business out to every one," and with a look of disgust she made for the door.

Among those favored with an interview was high private G. Vansant, of the 79th Ohio, thirteen years old, a clean face and bright-eyed youth, who has made the entire campaign from Atlanta with the regiment, acting part of the time as drummer boy, and part as Orderly to General Ward

"Well, my son, said the President, "what do you want? A brevet, I suppose. Brevet Corporal? How will that do?

"No, sir, I don't care for rank. I have a pony brought all the way through, and they are going to take him from me, and I want to take him home and keep him."

"You shall have him." And writing an order for transportation, and directing the officers to let him have the pony. "Now I am all right again," and with a "thank you," left the President to make room for a delegation of rebels coming to beg for pardon. These delegations are numerous now. Many of them seem humble now, but if one converses with them five minutes he finds the doctrine of State rights uppermost in their minds, and a deal of bitterness against the colored population.

A Georgia delegation were discussing the press and accorded the first place to the Tribune, because, as one of them remarked, "it is so kind and conciliatory, so different from what it used to be. What could have made the change!"—Phil. Inq.

MR. STANTON AT HIS FORMER HOME.

The Union Convention of Allegany county, Pa., which lately met in Pittsburg, passed resolutions on the state of the country which have the true ring.—We give the one relating to the Secretary of War, showing how emphatically his old neighbors and friends recognize the self-sacrificing services of this faithful, vigilant War Minister in the cause of our country:

Eleventh. That the grateful thanks of the nation are due to the Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War, for his invaluable services in the life struggle of the Republic against treason and rebellion—In him we recognize the incorruptible patriot who, in the performance of his duty, never faltered, and in the darkest hour of the conflict never quailed, never thought of yielding the good cause, never despaired of the Republic. The people of this, the county of his former home, are proud of his record, and grateful for his services, that have so largely contributed to the final triumph of the nation.

☞A letter from Ex Governor and Ex-Senator Hammond, of mud-sill notoriety, was found in Charleston, and is published, written fifteen years ago, in which the writer caustically speaks of and approves the then broached idea of a Southern government in days like these. "I do not (he says) think it advisable to agitate it warmly out of Charleston, just yet!"

IS YOUR LIVER OUT OF ORDER?
It is a difficult thing to keep the liver in good order in this changeable climate. It is sometimes too active, and sometimes too inodorous. In either case a disordered system is sure to be the consequence. Your liver must act with regularity if you enjoy health; and to restore that regularity of action when best, there is nothing so effective as Radway's Regulating Pills. A disordered liver leads to quite a number of serious disorders. The jaundice, the rheumatism, the fever and ague, and many other ailments all cease all accomplay when a condition of things. Resort immediately to the use of Radway's Regulating Pills. They never fail to remove the cause of all such trouble. They are compounded of the purest medicaments known to pharmacy, the very essences of which, and neither coarser substances, are employed by Dr. Radway. Hence, his Regulating Pills have a peculiarity suitable purge in thoroughly searching out diseases, and expelling it from the system of every embarrassed organ. They do not distress the delicate coats of the stomach, occasioning gripes, pains, tenesmus, and so be, by their drastic operation, as too many other pills do. They purge gently, regularly, and without straining. They leave no weakness behind them. They are pleasant to take, and cost but 25 cents a box—a quantity with the cakes which Mr. C. manufactures, cannot be excelled, if equalled, in Baltimore. We commend him to the favorable notice of all that wish a cold, sparkling glass of Soda Water, after enjoying a good cake, at the same cost that many others are asking for an inferior beverage.
