INDICATIONS WHICH POINT TO A BRIGHTER DESTINY FOR MARYLAND.

The movement of citizens of other States into Maryland for the purpose of finding homes, increases. Day by day, as we learn from those best posted in regard to this matter—our real estate agents—these strangers traverse our streets, take steamers for the lower counties, or the cars for the Western, and busy themselves generally with looking into the chances of profitably employing their capital in the thousand departments of enterprize now so plainly inviting it—And the immigration hither has only begun. Most of those who make their appearance here, insist that when the summer's work is over which imperatively demands the presence at home of the working population of the North, that then we shall see such a flood of immigration pouring in hither, as will astonish those who have been content in the past to see the State nearly at a stand-still. Many of these persons, we learn, come as explorers, not only for themselves, but for friends and neighborhoods; and anxious to leave cold regions and comparatively barren soils for the advantages presented in so many forms here, no sooner do they become acquainted with these chances for a better destiny, than they hurry homeward to prepare to transfer themselves hither, and to persuade their friends and acquaintances to accompany them.

In this regard, the method which has obtained throughout the West, will but to a limited extent be followed here. Whoever has explored those States to any extent, knows that where a family of Pennsylvanians have broken ground, others from the same State and neighborhood have followed: so from Ohio, Kentucky and other States, until, in a measure, colonies have been formed, retaining, to a considerable extent, the characteristics of the region left behind. But whilst neighborhoods in the instance of immigration to Maryland may be influenced to accompany each other, only to a very limited degree—we say—can the same rule prevail in locating families. Whilst in the new States, vast tracts of prairie were lying vacant, awaiting occupation, and thus enabling communities from the old States to settle like swarms of bees in particular localities, here in Maryland the land has been so appropriated and is so occupied, that those coming here must purchase here and there, in many instances widely apart, thus diffusing the population and the influences the great changes recently taking place will bring.

And when we consider what vast room is left in the State for an addition to our population, when we note the immense number of farms hitherto cultivated by slave labor and containing hundreds and thousands of acres each, which are now in their present shapes rendered almost unavailable to their present owners for lack of labor and capital—that these farms must be divided and subdivided in order to make them profitable, we see at a glance how much land must be within reach of the new population, now turning their glances in this direction for homes, and how valuable must be that acquisition of industry and capital, needful to add to and develop the resources of the State. In this regard the land owners of the State must consent to part with the surplus portion in their hands, however much it may seem to detract from their old standing as the proprietors of extensive domains—The foolish notion that the local or neighborhood importance of the individual was to be measured by the area of his lands; that the man who owned one thousand acres was of more influence and dignity than him of five hundred, or two, or one hundred, must to exploded; and merit will have to be determined by far other considerations, by the possession and display of energy, talent and usefulness instead.

And a healthful change will this be.—To bring it forward, it wants development in a thousand ways, apart from material advancement merely. And the men,—whoever they may be,—who will come amongst us as the apostles of religion, of education, of morality, of the sciences, or of the mechanic arts and agricultural improvement, should be conceded that standing, that consideration, that influence, which in the past history of Maryland has been conceded as a matter of course to the simple possessors of great "manors," where in the latter case too, they had not a single quality perhaps, to recommend them, calculated to really aid in the advancement of the State. Of course, a revolution so signal and imperatively necessary, will find opponents amongst the old habitues, the landed aristocracy whose honors in this line will be curtailed. These latter will, and do naturally cling to that traditional importance which was theirs, aside from all individual merit. Dethroned by the advancing spirit of the age; sharing the overthrow of that system which projected a bloody revolution to fix itself on a firmer basis, it will yield but reluctantly, and only when forced by dire necessity from the fancied stronghold it has so long occupied.

But what will be the first and most obvious result of the great change thus anticipated? Why, the decayed and proud family which clings to the half-ruined "manorial" residence: which broods over all like a spell, holding everything for miles around in abeyance in order that its vieste may be undisturbed, will have to arouse from its slumbers, will have to yield to the march of events, to progress. On those miles of weed overgrown and vacant lands, will spring up as by enchantment, the snug cottages of the thriving and industrious "small farmers," who taking the soil acre by acre, will in the end make the whole country "blossom as the rose." The spell will be broken, the incubus removed, and the State will awaken to new life. And as these colonists "close up their ranks," as they multiply the wealth and resources of neighborhoods, the school house and the church will spring up also; and education, and morality and religion will make themselves felt. Who does not wish to see a revolution like this? Who is not wearied of witnessing that decay and desolation, that apathy which has so long lain upon the commonwealth as a paralysis? Then we say—let us welcome those hither, who are to aid the enlightened here in achieving a revolution so needful; and let none blame us for watching with eagerness every indication which thus points the way to a better destiny.

THE ICE WITCH.—We would call the special attention of all in search of dramatic entertainment to the elaborate cast of Mr. Ford for this remarkable play for the Holliday Street Theatre to-night;—something that cannot be gotten up except with vast and costly preparation, and which once seen in its weird and dazzling beauty can never be forgotten. In a general way, these are the pieces which bring the drama into disrepute, so far as reconciling the real and the fanciful are in the case; because in anything of so wide and difficult a range, it is all but impossible that everything should appear to harmonize; but knowing the ability of those who have this in hand, we look for splendid illusions; for the time undisturbed by conflict with the gross and material in rendering the spirit of the play. A careful perusal of the programme will show that all that seems possible has been provided for, and therefore we look for a signal success on the part of all concerned

A HEAVY SENTENCE.—C. Louis Schlimer, 15th New York artillery, who was recently tried before the Brigade Court Martial, in this city, has been sentenced "To be cashiered and dishonorably dismissed the service of the United States, forfeiting all pay and allowances due or that may hereafter become due, and that he be fined the sum of ten thousand dollars, ($10,000,) and be confined at hard labor, at such place as the proper authority may direct, for and during the period of three (3) years; and also, that he be forever disqualified from holding any office of honor, trust or profit under the Government of the United States." The findings and sentence have been approved by the President, and the Secretary of War has designated Fort Warren, Boston harbor, as his place of confinement—Wash Republican

TOBACCO.—We learn from parties posted on the subject, that the quantity of tobacco along the line of the Danville railroad is very great, and at this at every station there are large quantities awaiting transportation. The crops of several years past are being brought out of the country and sent to market. In return for this supply the farmers will be supplied with everything desirable for the future cultivation of the soil and enhancement of their farms—Rich. Times.

PILLS THAT ARE PERFECT.

There are many good pills in the world, we hope, for the sake of humanity, but the pills that are really "perfect" because they are aperient, tonic, laxative, stimulant, counter-irritant, sudorific, and alterative at the same time, are Radway's Regulating Pills, sold everywhere, and for only 25 cents a box. With these rare pills in your house, you can do without purging by means of other pills or powders. You can do without salts, sedlitz, castor oil, citrate of magnesia, senna and manna. You want none of these. Radway's Regulating Pills are a substitute for the whole of them, and, what is better, may be taken with safety and comfort by the most delicate woman as well as the robust man. They are the only vegetable preparation existing which will answer in place of calomel, regulating the action of the liver, without causing you a life-or-death use of mercury or blue pill. They open the bowels in a proper and wholesome manner, being composed of the extracts of suitable medicaments. They do not gripe like other pills, but the drastic pills of aloes or Croton or Harlem Oil, or stramonium, by irritating the coats of the intestines. They are warranted the "perfect" pills of the age, and when taken keep all the functions in a healthy condition, compel all the organs to do their duty with regularity, purify the blood, and secure that treasure's blessing, sound health. There is nothing like Radway's Regulating Pills for the cure of all disorders of the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and bladder; for nervous diseases, headache, costiveness, indigestion, bilious fever, piles and all derangements of the internal viscera. For sale by druggists; they have in the city a panacea for some of the most painful and dangerous of all diseases. Sold by Druggists.

N. B.—Dr. Radway's pills are elegantly coated with gum, are free from a taste or smell, and peculiarly adapted for the use of all who are averse to taking pills. A child can swallow them with ease; they are mild, soothing and beating in their operation, they purge disease thoroughly from the system. Every family should keep them in the house. au7-dw&w

SPECIAL NOTICES.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The general interest which manifests itself in every direction in regard to the coming Inaugural Festival of the "BALTIMORE RIFLE ASSOCIATION," ("Baltimore Schuetzen Verein,") and the large number of guests from abroad and from our midst who will participate, to give the celebration a far more extensive character than was originally anticipated. From all sides we are receiving press puffs, and it may be expected to see a pictorial history of articles, representing works of art and industry, will attract the examining eye and judgment of many strangers and thousands of our own citizens. To give all those a chance to contribute to the Festival Exhibition as opportunity to do so, and also to enable the Committee to provide proper and sufficient room, we request those who wish to be represented by contributions at the Festival to send such articles as they may select to JULIUS CONRAD, No 3 South Frederick street, or to give notice at the latter place where we may call for them. A printed catalogue of the articles so contributed will be published and circulated.

☞ Passengers leaving Baltimore, at 6 P. M., arrive at Richmond the next afternoon at 3 P. M.

The steamers of this Line are all new, constructed with a great regard to strength, speed and safety, at a very great expense, consisting of the following first-class side wheel Steamers, superbly fitted up in Saloons and State Rooms.

GEORGE LEARY, J. T. BRADY,

One of the above Boats leave foot of Gay Street, Baltimore, at 6 o'clock, P. M., for Fortress Monroe and Norfolk, Va., connecting with the elegant State Room Steamers CITY POINT and DICTATOR, for Richmond, Va.

These Boats have all been at Sea in the roughest of winter weather, without damage or strain. One of them having been to New Orleans, and made one of the quickest passages on record, in the dead of winter. The GEORGE LEARY having run all last winter outside on the Coast, and was demonstrated to be by far the fastest boat in these waters, having run from City Point to New York in 23½ hours. They invariably arrive in Baltimore from 1 to 2½ hours before the other line.

NORFOLK TO CHESAPEAKE, YORK-TOWN,
