SUCCESSFUL RAISING OF THE PRI netic instruments at the Greenwich Ob servatory showed that what is termed a magnetic storm had commenced. These storms cause currents to flow through talegraph wires, and seriously affect the working of both land and sea lines. He also states that, although the storm has much abated, currents may still be passing of sufficient strength to confuse the siguals passing from the ship through the delicate instruments used at Valentia This magnetic storm is the greatest the has occurred for many years." These explanations are somewhat reassuring, although the Atlantic Company, in their official statements, make no allusion to electrical disturbances.

Another theory is that the ship may have encountered bad weather, and been obliged to cut and buoy the cable.
