Obit: How cast thou in fresh woods

And in thy crystal fountains

Art thou a better guest

To-day it is a little thing

A simple, sweet and word

The better thou art stirred

He was a lonely ragged boy

In a little hole he bore

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor

And in his hands he held

What he had found in the world

To him he came with his poor
