DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This lovely Gothic Revival style farmhouse sits on a hill facing south.

Built on fieldstone foundations, this two and a half story, three bay by five bay, L-shape frame house has been expanded to serve the six generations of Walkers who built the house and have lived here continuously. The house used to have novelty siding, but this was recently replaced by aluminum siding. The south (front) porch has a flat roof with a turned balustrade railing at the roof line and supported by four wooden columns. The porch area is enclosed by a railing with turned balusters similar to that on the porch roof. This porch is smaller than the original. The south door has two round-headed lights over two lower wooden panels. The doorway is surmounted by a transom light.

One over one and two over two double hung windows are flanked by black aluminum louvered shutters. On the west elevation there is a one story bay window. The house has an unusual cross gable roof, there are three cross gables on the south elevation. Two light Gothic windows are set into these cross gables, these gables also have decorative scalloped bargeboards. The north and east gable ends have two small windows: one is a four light casement window and one is a louvered ventilator window. The roof has corrugated metal covering. There is one interior end chimney on the east elevation.

The south door leads into a central hallway. An open string single run staircase ascends from south to north along the west interior wall. The stairway has a round newel post, a carved banister and turned balusters. To the east is a parlor and to the west is the music room. North of the hall is an enclosed porch with a modern bay window set into the west interior wall opening onto the dining room. The kitchen is north of the dining room and porch. A sun room is located west of the dining room.

There are random width floors. The floor in the parlor was replaced when termites destroyed the original flooring. There are ten foot ceilings in the south section of the house. The walls and ceilings are plaster over lath. The molded door frames accepted the wooden paneled doors. There are plaster ceiling medallions in the parlor and music room, the dining room medallion was removed sometime ago. The house when it was first built had a bathroom complete with a wooden copper-lined tub. In addition, closets were built into the house.

A clapboarded, gabled meat house is located northeast of the house. The dinner bell hangs at the peak of the gable; its ring can be heard all over the farm.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

"Mendelsohn Terrace" is significant for having been the "musical and literary center of the community where Professor George Washington Wesley Walker's choirs and schools gathered for musical and social occasions" during the late nineteenth century in upper Montgomery County. He led singing, directed the choir, played the organ in the Bethesda Church near his home for 56 years. Professor Walker had everyone in the upper part of the county singing.¹ The house is currently owned and occupied by one of G. W. Walker's grandchildren.

In April, 1830, George Brian Walker was deeded some land called "Henry & Elizabeth Enlarged" from Peter Boyer. One hundred and forty-four acres of this land descended first to his son, Nathan James Walker, to hold for his younger son, George Washington Wesley Walker. In his will of May 16, 1857, George Brian Walker left the farm to George W. Walker.² The deed, however, did not transfer to George W. Walker until Dec. 20, 1875. He had to buy out his brothers' and sisters' interest in the estate for $2,400 before he obtained ownership.

George Washington Wesley Walker, the Professor of Music, was responsible for the building of "Mendelsohn Terrace". He was born in a log cabin on the farm in Oct. 1837. Only the stone chimney of that original family cabin remains on the farm. George Walker married Rachel Browning Purdum in 1858, and they had eight children. In the census records of 1870 & 1880, he is listed as a farmer. In his early years, however, he showed a marked interest in music, and learned avidly from local teachers. He received more formal training and recognition when in the summer of 1870 he attended the "Normal Institute" in Florida, New York. There he studied under music master, Lowell Mason,³ and, also, established several close professional friendships that continued throughout the rest of his life. For over forty years the original picture of his class at the "Normal Institute" hung in the music room at Mendelsohn Terrace.⁴

According to assessment records, George W. W. Walker's farm consisted of 144 acres. Between the 1873 and 1882 assessments, the price per acre decreased, and although the value of the land property was declared the same, $2460, the 1882 assessment shows that $1020 of that went for improvements,⁵ perhaps for construction of the grand new farm house. A date marker on the house indicates construction was in 1880. John Mount, a local builder, was builder of both "Mendelsohn Terrace" and the Bethesda Church up the road, which the Walker family started. Seventh and eighth generation Walkers continue to farm the land and occupy the lovely "Mendelsohn Terrace".

There are three cross gables on the south elevation. Two eight light Gothic windows are set into each of these cross gables.

10. Significance: The land on which Mendelsohn Terrace sits has been in the same family since 1830 and is still a viable family farm. The house itself is an important example of Gothic Revival architecture in Montgomery County. George Brian Walker was deeded the land in 1830. His son, George Washington Wesley Walker was born in a log cabin on the farm in 1837; the stone chimney of the original family log cabin still remains on the farm. Mendelsohn Terrace was built in 1880 for George W. Walker by John Mount, a local builder. Mount also constructed Bethesda Church nearby, founded by the Walkers. For over 50 years Mendelsohn Terrace was the musical and literary center of Browningsville as Professor Walker's choirs and schools gathered for musical and social occasions. It has been stated that Walker had everyone in the upper county singing. Seventh and eighth generation Walkers continue to live here and run the dairy farm.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house is a two-story, frame structure with a three, bay main facade, composed of double windows flanking a double door. The facade has three dormers that break through the boxed cornice; the central dormer has the date 1880 in large wooden numerals.

In plan, the house has a central hall and flanking parlours. The oval staircase is open to the third floor.

The present house replaced an earlier one on a nearby site. The earlier house was an A-roofed, log structure of two parts; originally a single house with external chimney, an addition made it a central chimney house. Each half had a central doorway and flanking windows. The chimneys and parts of the foundation and walls remain standing.
